Usb wifi adapter problem only on a particular desktop

2019/07/16

I just assembled a new pc by a computer tech guy, but as I have the setup in my room hence the router is pretty far from the pc but its a wifi router. Hence I plugged in a TP Link TL WN727N V4 usb wifi adapter, also installed its driver. But only on this particular PC the wifi connection is pretty slow around 150kbs download and 20-30kpbs upload sometimes it drops to around 4kpbs download and almost nil upload. My internet plan is 40mbps download. All other devices are working properly on this wifi but only this pc it is not, also when I plugged in the wifi usb adapter in my laptop, it gave a decent speed or normal speed as expected. The specs of the PC is processor - AMD ryzen 3 1200mobo- msi A320Mgraphics - NVIDIA Gt 1030ram - 8gb DDR4 1200mhzwindows 10 proI have installed all of its driver etc. I also read in a forum that amd quick stream might be the culprit as it restricts data usage but I can't find it anywhere in my pc. Also sometimes only when the usb wifi adapter is plugged in this particular pc, the speed turns horrible and even the speeds of the other devices connected to this network turns horrible but when I unplug the usb wifi adapter its turns back ok. I thought the wifi adapter is the culprit but it seems to work fine on other devices with no network issue.Please really need a solution to this problem, been troubling me for almost a week. Any helpful solutions would be appreciated
